IP65 Embedded Industrial Touch Monitor 15.6 Inch Touch All In One Computer

Display

The computer features a 15.6-inch LCD display with a capacitive touch panel. The capacitive touch technology enables precise and responsive touch input, allowing users to interact with the computer by directly touching the screen.

All-in-One Design

The 15.6 inch touch all in one integrates all the essential components, including the processor, memory, storage, and connectivity options, into a single unit. This eliminates the need for a separate tower or external components, saving space and providing a neat and clutter-free setup.

Processing Power

The 15.6 inch touch all in one is equipped with a powerful processor, which can vary depending on the specific model or configuration. The processor ensures smooth performance and enables the computer to handle various tasks, including web browsing, multimedia playback, and productivity applications.
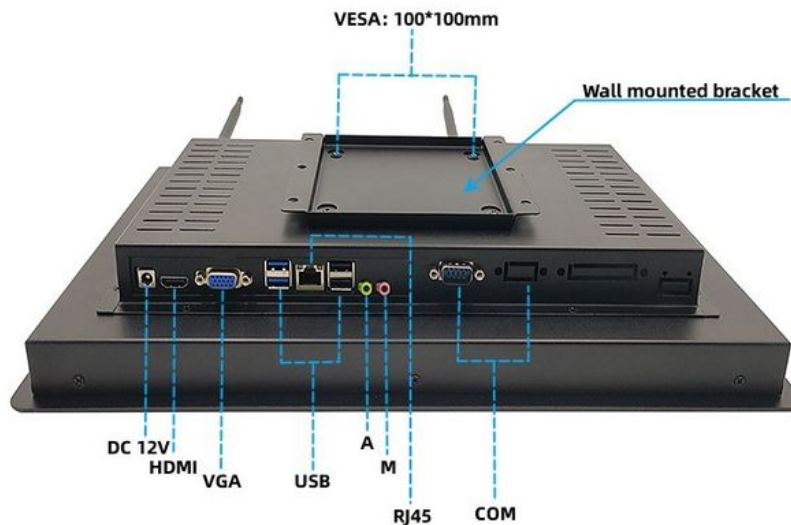

Memory and Storage

The 15.6 inch all in one comes with a certain amount of RAM (Random Access Memory), which determines the device's multitasking capabilities. Additionally, it offers storage options such as solid-state drives (SSD) or hard disk drives (HDD) to store files, applications, and operating systems.

Operating System

The 15.6 inch touch all in one typically comes pre-installed with an operating system, such as Windows, or Linux. The operating system provides the user interface and manages the computer's resources, allowing users to interact with applications and perform tasks.
